Market review

The Australian share market finished lower in September, ending an impressive 11-month run of gains, with the S&P/ASX 300 losing 1.9% for the month. The Energy sector benefitted from rising coal and oil prices, with the sector up 16.7% for the month. Materials, Health Care and Information Technology were the biggest drags on the Index falling 9.3%, 4.9% and 3.9% respectively.

September saw an evaporation to the gains made in global markets over the last three months, with developed and emerging markets receding by 3.1% and 2.8% in Australian Dollar terms respectively as measured by the MSCI AC World ex-Australia Index and MSCI Emerging Markets Index. This contraction in performance was primarily driven by fears of a global financial contagion stemming from the worlds most indebted company, Evergrande Group based in China.

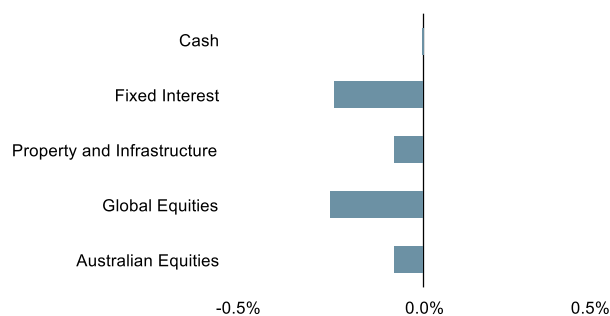

The S&P/ASX 200 A-REIT Accumulation Index returned -2.2% in September, mainly fuelled by selling towards the month end. Global real estate equities (represented by the FTSE EPRA/NAREIT Developed Ex Australia Index (AUD Hedged) sold off during September, with the index closing 5.4% lower.

September saw a sharp reversal in the performance in Fixed Income markets, with the trend of decreasing yields coming to a halt. Increasing inflationary expectations, and growing fears that the current high levels of inflation may not be transitory, have driven yields upwards. Credit spreads also widened over the month which, combined with the changes to the risk-free rate, resulted in the Bloomberg AusBond Composite 0+ Yr Index falling -1.5% over the month. Globally, the story is very similar, as continued supply issues drive fears of protracted inflationary pressure, resulting in rising yields. As such, the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate Index (AUD Hedged) Index fell -1.0% over the month.

Asset allocation breakdown

Portfolio Commentary

The Portfolio returned -0.64% for the month of September, outperforming both the relevant peer group benchmark and internal strategic asset allocation benchmark. In what proved to be a challenging month for global financial markets, all asset classes produced negative absolute returns.

Manager selection was strong through the month across the board, particularly within both fixed interest and Australian equities. Of particular note from an equity perspective was the Investors Mutual Australian Share Fund, who's focus on quality and valuation drove strong relative returns. Within fixed income all strategies performed well, outperforming their respective benchmarks, as markets grappled with rising bond yields and continued inflation concerns.

Outlook

September proved to be a challenging month for financial markets as fears of a global financial contagion spread following the news Chinese based developer Evergrande, the worlds most indebted company, was renegotiating coupon repayments on US$300b of outstanding debt. Looking forward, the outlook for global growth remains somewhat negative with the US Fed announcing it will begin tapering asset purchases by the end of the year. This coincides with an already poor environment for global growth with rising energy prices and a global supply chain gridlock, not to mention the ever present spectre of the delta Covid variant.

Domestically, equity markets followed the lead of their global peers experiencing increased volatility albeit of a low base. News of increased vaccination rates and reopening plans, whilst a positive for many individuals and businesses, did little to quell broader macro and valuation concerns, both of which continue to be front of mind. The portfolio remains well diversified across asset classes and the quality and risk-control elements embedded within sectors, provide added comfort as we manage through what we expect may be a more volatile period.
