Market review

The Australian market closed out the month with the S&P/ASX 300 up 6.9% in March and all 11 sectors finishing positively. The Technology sector (11.8%) led the index and rebounded from a February selloff, with Energy (+10.1%), Materials (+9.3%), Financials (+8.5%) and Utilities (+7.6%) all performing strongly. The Energy and Materials sector continued their stellar year-to-date performances as commodity prices continued to soar.

The Australian dollar drove global markets returns in March as the MSCI World ex Australia NR Index (AUD Hedged) returned 2.9% while the MSCI World ex Australia NR Index (AUD) fell -0.9%. The Australian dollar continued to climb in the month of March closing 3.4% higher relative to the greenback and 4.9% in trade-weighted terms. Rising commodity prices were again the primary driver of AUD support over the month of March. Geopolitical uncertainty continued to be the core focus for investors as upward price pressure on energy and commodities hastens the pace of inflation across the globe.

March was a positive month for both the local A-REIT market and the broader Global real estate equities market with the S&P/ASX 200 A-REIT Index (AUD) and the FTSE EPRA/NAREIT Developed Ex Australia Index (AUD Hedged) advancing 1.3% and 4.9%, respectively. The strong monthly move in global REITs was attributable to the climb in the AUD.

March saw Fixed Income markets deliver another terrible result with the Bloomberg AusBond Composite 0+ Year Index's falling 3.8% over the month. International bond markets continued to sell off during March with the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate Index (AUD Hedged) Index falling -2.1%. With inflation remaining elevated across the world, central banks have begun to raise rates, most notably, in March the US Federal Reserve issued its first-rate hike since COVID began, resulting in yields surging around the world.

Asset allocation breakdown

Portfolio Commentary

The Portfolio fell -0.16% over the month of March, underperforming the relevant peer group benchmark. The Australian Equities and Property and Infrastructure allocations contributed with the Fidelity Australian Equities Fund, IML Australian Share Fund and BT WS Property Investment Fund leading performance across the portfolio. The Fixed Interest and Global Equities allocations detracted from portfolio performance in March. The PIMCO WS Global Bond Fund, Colchester Wholesale Global Government Bond Fund and Macquarie Income Opportunities Fund were the largest detractors to portfolio performance. Inflation remained elevated in March with central banks across the world beginning to raise rates which resulted in yields surging and poor performance across the sector.

Outlook

The global economy has arguably entered a transition period, with over a decade of accommodative monetary policy finally coming to an end. More "normal" inflationary pressures have been exacerbated by pandemic-related disruptions to supply-chains and the invasion of Ukraine, which is a key exporter of grain and various hard commodities.

From a market perspective, periods of transition are always challenging, being characterised by increased uncertainty and market volatility. Such conditions require a difficult balance between defence (focused on capital preservation) and offence (focused on growth). Our portfolios remain well-diversified, and we hold assets such as property and infrastructure within the portfolios to assist in managing risk. We continue to assess the threats of rising inflation, tightening monetary policy and potential expansion of the Russia/Ukraine conflict as new information comes to hand.

We strongly recommend that potential investors read the product disclosure statement or investment statement.
